

"GANDHI// SPOKE OF SWARAJ IN ONE YEAR. I SPEAK OF REAL PEOPLE'S GOVERNMENT IN ONE YEAR."

Jayaprakash Narayan

"Give me one year to build a new country" declared prominent socialist Jayaprakash Narayan when he called for a total revolution which became the rallying point for opposition to Indira Gandhi and dissent against the ruling Congress. The Gandhian, despite his advancing age, attracted huge crowds at rallies and his Citizens for Democracy movement gathered pace, eventually forcing Indira to impose the Emergency. JP, as he was known, campaigned against Indira during the post-Emergency election, leading to her loss in the Rae Bareilly elections.

ELSEWHERE...

- A revolution in Portugal restored democracy.
- In August, President Nixon became the first US president to resign from office, charged with conspiracy in the Watergate scandal. Gerald Ford became President (above).

- The World Trade Centre, the tallest building in the world at 110 storeys, was inaugurated in New York City.

Snapshot Visit

On March 25, Iraqi Vice-President Saddam Hussein arrived in Delhi on an official visit. At the time, he was just as powerful as the then president Ahmed Hassan Bakr, but five years later, he officially became head of the state when Bakr resigned on July 16, 1979.

VILLAGE VISION

Shyam Benegal's first masterpiece, Ankur, starring Shabana Azmi in the role of a villager, and Anant Nag as the feudal visitor who desired her, explored caste and class conflict in rural Indian society. Art cinema, finally, came of age.

2.5 crore

were unemployed. Currently, the figure is well over 4 crore.

15,000 workers were laid off by the Indira Gandhi Government during the year. The number of mandays lost came down from 210 lakh in 1973 to 160 lakh.