

198

INDIA AT 60

HIGH ON DRAMA

The 16 drama-filled days of the Ninth Asian Games in Delhi saw 5,000 athletes from 33 countries and marked Asia's emergence as a sporting powerhouse. In contrast, the first Games in Delhi in 1951 had attracted just 11 countries which had taken part in six sports events. Over 14 days of competition, an incredible 74 Asian and Asian Games records were broken as Asia fast closed in on the best in the world. India finished fifth with a cache of 57 medals, but won the hearts of Asians with the organisation of the event, which established Rajiv Gandhi's managerial skills. The event also kickstarted the era of colour television in India as the Games were broadcast in colour. This was also the first Asiad to be held under the aegis of the Olympic Council of Asia.

BHAWAN SINGH

And Then She Left for Good

Maneka Gandhi left her mother-in-law Indira Gandhi's house for good in March 1982, signifying to the world her final break with the Gandhi family and removing the last obstacle for Rajiv Gandhi to become Indira Gandhi's successor.

FIRST CUT

The Palace on Wheels luxury train made its maiden journey on February 2. The tickets for the first ride started at Rs 5,600.

BHAWAN SINGH