

1999

FIERY HEIGHTS

<< REWIND

Guns fired and a battle raged high on the icy mountains of Kargil in Jammu and Kashmir in an armed conflict between India and Pakistan from May to July 1999. Having stealthily made their way into the Indian side of the LoC, Pakistani infiltrators had to be pushed back by Indian troops. Pakistan blamed the war on Kashmiri militants but evidence from casualties proved otherwise. After three months of battle, the Indian jawans recaptured the lost territory. Many died, but cries of patriotism resounded, bringing the nation together like never before.

TWO MONTHS EARLIER...

Prime Minister A.B. Vajpayee made the historic bus trip to Lahore on February 20 to meet his Pakistani counterpart Nawaz Sharif and initiate a peace talk.

FIRST CUT

• Infosys Technologies became the first Indian company to be listed in the prestigious top 100 companies of Nasdaq on March 11.

• For the first time in the country's history, the Central Government lost a confidence motion by the margin of just one vote. This led to the downfall of the 13-month-old Vajpayee Government.

