

FREEDOM BY FORCE

COMPLETE INDEPENDENCE:
Captured Portuguese troops

<< REWIND

Even after Independence, pockets of the country remained under foreign rule. The French gave up Pondicherry but Portugal continued to challenge India's claim on its coastal enclave of Goa. International opinion failed to convince the Portuguese Government to change its stand. Following an incident of firing by Portuguese troops at Indian steamers and fishing boats, India sent in the army to liberate the territory by force. Within three days, without much resistance from the small Portuguese force, India liberated Goa. On December 19, 1961, Goa officially became part of India and two years later, held its first general election.

NEITHER GIVE NOR TAKE

At the United Nations General Assembly, Jawaharlal Nehru addressed the global issue of disarmament and the staggering futuristic possibility of a nuclear war.

FIRST CUT

• India made its first colour cinemascope film, Pyaar Ki Pyaas, directed by Mahesh Kaul.

• The Census of India identified 1,652 mother tongues spoken in the country.

<< DID YOU KNOW

In the 1960-61 India-Pakistan cricket series, bowler Asif Iqbal played against Pakistan, representing South Zone. He played at the university in Hyderabad before his family migrated to Pakistan.