THE BUZZ OF THE WEEK

Having launched its first TV channel, Jai Hind, in Malayalam last week, the Congress now plans to start channels in every language. If that happens, India's grand old party may also become India's largest private broadcaster.

VOICES

"The Congress party is not afraid of elections. If a party is wary of elections, it will have to close shop."

Digvijay Singh, AICC general secretary

"I think CPI is reasonable, but CPI(M) wants to have the cake and eat it too. I can accept what is acceptable but I cannot let anarchy prevail in the state."

Y.S. Rajasekhara Reddy, chief minister, Andhra Pradesh

"While a section of the English-speaking youth have benefitted from the growth in the IT sector, those coming out of language schools are facing unemployment."

Sharad Yadav, JD(U) president

"The Government of Goa and the Opposition have been rejected by the people since they were directly involved in the blatant sale and rape of the state."

Remo Fernandes, pop musician

"Television shows have misguided hundreds of young boys and girls. These 20-somethings, sometimes even younger, feel they have attained success. Unfortunately, that is just an illusion."

Lata Mangeshkar, Bharat Ratna-awardee singer
