

NEW LEGISLATIVE AGENDA

WITH THE MONSOON Session of Parliament set to commence from July 20, there are expectations that the government will take forward two key economic legislation, including the Corporate Laws (Amendment) Bill, 2026, and the Securities Market Code Bill, 2025. Both of these are currently under review. The Corporate Laws Amendment Bill, which seeks to amend the Companies Act and the Limited Liability Partnership Act for easier compliance, decriminalisation and more flexibility to companies was referred to the Joint Parliamentary Committee. Meanwhile, the Securities Market Code that seeks to consolidate and modernise three legislation, including the Securities Contracts (Regulations) Act, 1956, the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) Act, 1992, and the Depositories Act, 1996, was referred to the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Finance.

TURNING PROVIDENT

A SOFTWARE UPGRADE, a consolidated database, easier norms for withdrawals and timely interest credit. With the Employees' Provident Fund Scheme seeing a complete overhaul, the test is now on how easy and efficient the user interface is. There's also an expectation that the Centre would now look at an overhaul of the Employees' Pension Scheme that continues to give a monthly minimum pension of ₹1,000 to eligible pensioners.
