

Gram Rath Abhiyan

The light of development reached Village to Village

The Rajasthan Government launched the Gram Rath Abhiyan to disseminate information about public welfare schemes to the doorstep of the villagers.

This campaign was not limited to just publicizing the schemes but also became an effective medium for establishing communication between the government and the villagers.

The campaign launched under the leadership of Chief Minister Shri Bhajanlal Sharma, the message of different development schemes reached the villages and worked to connect millions of villagers with various government schemes.

By combining modern technology, public participation and administrative activism, this campaign has been completed by creating a new model of rural awareness.

An innovative approach to disseminating development information

Many public welfare schemes of the state government are run for the rural people.

A direct connection through illustrative audio/video is needed to get benefit of the government schemes. Keeping this in mind, Gram Rath Abhiyan was started so that information about the schemes could reach the villagers directly and no eligible citizen should be deprived of the benefits of schemes.

Through Gram Rath rural communities learned about various welfare schemes of the Government through audiovisual presentations on LED screens. The engaging format helped disseminate information in an accessible manner, drawing participation from women, men and senior citizens alike.
