

GALLERIE GANESHA It is often called "the defining moment : that split second when all of a sudden, with startling clarity, a person identifies the unique task that one is meant to perform in life.

For Shobha Bhatia, this moment arrived more than two decades ago, when she and husband Sonny had finally settled down after an enriching nomadic life. It was then, that she was suddenly hit by the realisation that there simply work not enough places in Delhi where the burgeoning number of artists and art lovers could meet.

An artist herself, Shobha was determined to make art more accessible by creating a low threshold environment in which artworks from budding young artists as well as from previously unnoticed older generation artists to reach and excite buyers from all walks of life.

Through Gallerie Ganesha she hoped to bridge the time gap between creativity and recognition and she actively set to work on achieving this vision through a relentless search for earnest young talent & giving expert advice to viewers & buyers. In the early days where information on art was limited, it was common for Shobha to spend many hours explaining artworks without any sale being made. That didn't bother her in the least- she derived lot of satisfaction from the increased art awareness and appreciation that her knowledge sharing invariably inspired. "To know is to love" has always been creed, her strong foundation of theory, history of Indian & International art and an excellent sense of aesthetics.

Her Search for new talent has also paid off : Shobha stood at the artistic cradle of now acclaimed artist Paresh Maity, Neeraj Goswami and Jayasri Burmen. Gallery Ganesha is a veritable treasure trove of artworks - representing artists of all styles and from all parts of India. Above all, one is encouraged to experience the art... Just as she had envisaged it - all those years ago.

GALLERY THRESHOLD was established by Tunti Chauhan in 1997, with a well defined role for itself-to act as a catalyst in initiating contemporary art related activities and starting a dialogue between the artist and the viewer.

Director Tunti Chauhan's genesis from a small gallery in Vizag to her current position of exceptional recognition is filled with insight and ingenuity in understanding Indian art's contemporary vision and its impact on society over more than a decade. Committed to bring concurrent Indian Art to pivotal attention her penetrating insight for picking up some of the best names in the art circuit like V.Ramesh, Vanita Gupta, Jagdish Chander, Justin Ponamany, ceramic priestess Jyotsna Bhat, sculptor and genius Laxma Goud. Curating a number of exhibitions like Paradigms 1, 2, & 3 and Angkor -The Silent Centuries, are all examples of a fine chronicle of exhibitions of great repute.

From her literary and accomplished influences, to her candor about reinventing expressive idioms in putting up shows both solo as well as curated truly captures their spirit. Each of these areas is well researched and exhibited with an equanimity and lucidity that distinguishes this gallery from an 'only sell' approach. Her name is one that spells proficiency in advice and in knowledge of artistic practices to many people around the world as well as India.
