

NORTH: Leader of the Market

The going has been steady in the region. Chandigarh ranks highest in consumer spending and infrastructure. Intra-regional disparities persist. Punjab remains unbeaten in agriculture. Bihar, still the laggard, has improved in governance, but its consumer market index is only one-tenth of the national average. It is the least developed state, be it in terms of literacy or infrastructure.

SOUTH: Ruling the Roost

The best-governed region retains its top overall position. The southern governance index is double that of the national average, with Puducherry leading. Tamil Nadu might have lost ground in terms of overall ranking, but it has improved in agriculture and so have Andhra Pradesh and Karnataka. Macro-economic indicators point towards overall prosperity.

SOUTHERN STATES
	Overall Rank	Agriculture	Consumer Market	Primary Education	Law & Order	Primary Health	Infrastructure	Investment	Budget & Prosperity

NORTH-EASTERN STATES
	Overall Rank	Agriculture	Consumer Market	Primary Education	Law & Order	Primary Health	Infrastructure	Investment	Budget & Prosperity
SIKKIM	1	6	3	2	1	1	2	1	1
MIZORAM	2	5	2	1	3	2	1	3	2

MEGHALAYA	7	1	4	5	8	7	7	7	6
ASSAM	8	8	7	7	5	8	8	5	7

Figures are ranks only among the eight north-eastern states. The big states are in bold.

The smallest state in the region, Sikkim, is clearly the leader, while Assam suffers from low per capita income. With Mizoram making its way to the top of the education ladder, North-East India's average education index exceeds the national average. But this doesn't hold for Arunachal Pradesh. Governance, consumer sector and agriculture are problem areas. The law and order situation is the worst in Manipur and Meghalaya.
