How do you envision the role of education today?

Education, in my opinion, should not be confined to books alone, but it should also pave the path in all round growth of an individual. The biggest contribution of education is to develop a deep sense of responsibility in the students towards the society and nation at large.

How do you view the present times and what will be your guidance to the present-day students?

Present time is full of hopes and promises for the younger generation on one hand and tough competition & expectations on the other. My advice to the students is to inculcate in them the spirit of flexibility, adaptability and patience. They should learn to take the sweet with the bitter and not lose hope at the smallest of setbacks.

In what way is GLA Group of Institutions different from other centers of technical & professional education in the country?

In my opinion GLA in totality upholds the philosophy of proper coordination of theory with actual practice, we do what we say. An excellent pool of highly qualified and research oriented faculty members create an ambience where learning becomes easy and therefore students excel in academics by earning ranks in the university merit list. Our association with the corporate world enables our students and faculty members to know the actual needs of the industries and gives them the unique opportunity to work on real life projects meeting the needs of Defence, Railways, Archeological Survey of India and other related infrastructural domains.
