

LAW

NLSIU, Bangalore, leads the field yet again, as National Law University, Jodhpur, and NUJS, Kolkata, are the new entrants to the top chart

TOP 10 COLLEGES

2007		2006
1	NLSIU, Bangalore	1
2	NALSAR University of Law, Hyderabad	2
3	NLIU, Bhopal	3
4	National Law University, Jodhpur	-
5	Campus Law Centre, Delhi University, Delhi	7
6	NUJS, Kolkata	-
7	Symbiosis Society's Law College, Pune	4
8	ILS Law College, Pune	5
9	Government Law College, Mumbai	8
10	Amity Law School, Delhi	10

National rankings are derived from a combination of perceptual and factual scores. Colleges that did not provide factual information were not ranked. *New entrants in Top 10. (-) Not ranked in the 2006 Top 20.

■ By Stephen David

The arms of Bangalore-based National Law School of India University (NLSIU) are almost like the law it teaches—long, and strong enough to keep the first rank firmly in its grasp. Barring the one-off slip in 2005 when it came second, the premier institute has always occupied the first place. While there are no major reshuffles in the second and third places, with National Academy of Legal Studies and Research (NALSAR) University of Law,

CONSISTENT:
NLSIU doing justice to its stature yet again

GIREESH G.V.

Hyderabad, and National Law Institute University (NLIU), Bhopal, retaining their respective positions, the fourth and sixth places have seen new entrants—the National Law University of Jodhpur and the West Bengal National University of Juridical Sciences in Kolkata.

NLSIU's impressive show raises the million-dollar question again—what makes this school a consistent topper? NLSIU Vice-Chancellor A. Jayagovind feels that it is the school's ability to harness talent that makes it such a success. Students here are taught to study on their own quite early. Add to this an A-class curriculum, a massive new library made of red sandstone that houses nearly 50,000 books and 150 journals and is considered the world's best e-library among all law schools, and the picture looks complete.

The students here are taught to be independent and they manage resources on their own with the help of the powerful Students' Bar Association, which has its own constitution. By the time they pass out, they can fit in anywhere: from top law firms in