

NALSAR: Enhancing the Craft of Lawyering

INFRASTRUCTURE

Ranked second in India according to the India Today AC Nielsen ORG-Marg Survey of Colleges for 2006, NALSAR (National Academy of Legal Studies and Research) has pioneered the demise of lecture-based law teaching, with classes being interactive debates guided by the teacher. According to the Vice Chancellor Prof. Ranbir Singh, the University's exceptional legal education system reflects the belief that 'lawyering' is a craft, and the primary skills required for its practice are ethics and professionalism.

Located 25 km from Hyderabad, NALSAR is a residential National University offering an integrated five-year B.A.LL.B.(Hons), LL.M. and Ph.D. Programmes. The campus is a sprawling, fifty-acre haven situated in close vicinity to Shameerpet Lake, and features semi-circular classrooms and a sky-lit, split-level library which has access to leading online legal and social science databases in addition to a vast array of print resources. Identified as one of Asia's leading law libraries, the NALSAR library is also a designated depository library of the United Nations. The elegant Moot Court Hall, near the library, has been the setting for many exciting legal debates. The campus is also enabled with a high speed wireless network to facilitate ease of access to online resources. The ratio of teachers to students is 1:12.5, ensuring that every student gets focused attention throughout the course.

COURSES

The NALSAR curriculum is spread across ten demanding semesters over a period of five years, requiring 5040 compulsory credit hours, 360 hours of clinical training, 141 written examinations, 46 research projects, 3 seminar reports and 49 oral
