

presentations from each student. The curriculum includes an intensive focus on Commercial Laws, Public Laws, International Law, Humanities, Corporate Laws, IPR, ADR and Domestic Laws.

With three research centres dedicated to the study of Intellectual Property Rights (IPR), Environmental Studies and Advanced Legal Studies respectively, NALSAR encourages voluntary study of issues related to its core programmes, which significantly expands students' knowledge base. NALSAR also has a Microsoft Scholars Programme on IPR to promote advanced study in the area. Additionally, the University conducts several workshops and seminars on issues pertinent to the contemporary setting, such as the workshop on "Capacity Building of Women Managers in Higher Education" held from 21 to 25 March 2007.

PROXIMATE EDUCATION

NALSAR's outreach programmes are conducted through NALSAR Proximate Education, or NALSAR PRO, which offers several post-graduate diploma programmes for legal fraternity and other professionals. The courses are non-residential and are similar to correspondence courses and distance education programmes. The Proximate Education concept utilizes the internet as an important medium of interaction with students. All enrolled candidates are given a user ID and password to access the website www.nalsarpro.org and interact with the faculty and also access various materials posted on the web. Additionally, contact classes are conducted at different cities in India allowing students to interact directly with course teachers. The exams are also conducted at various cities for the convenience of working professionals who have registered for such courses.

STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT

Students at NALSAR consistently report high scales of achievement. The class of 2008, for example, has distinguished itself in over forty International as well as National level Moot Court competitions. They were International finalists at the qualifying rounds of the 11th Stetson International Environmental Law Moot Court Competition held at Stetson University College of Law, Florida, in 2006; champions of the 11th Stetson International Environmental Law Moot Court Competition India National rounds; Ranked 4th in the 2004 Philip C. Jessup International Moot

Court held in Washington DC and reached the semi-final round of this competition in 2006, winners at the 6th All India Human Rights Moot Court Competition 2006, and also won best researcher awards at the Henry Dunant International Humanitarian Law Moot Court 2004 Competition and the 5th Amity National Moot Court Competition 2005.

ACADEMIC EXCHANGES

In a path-breaking venture, NALSAR signed an MoU (Memorandum of Understanding) in 2005 with Microsoft to launch the Microsoft Scholars Programme for Intellectual Property Rights. Under the programme, research scholarships will be provided for three selected students to undertake fundamental research and author papers on topics related to IPR. NALSAR has also made agreements for academic exchange programmes with the University of Western Ontario, Canada, in 2004; the University of New South Wales, Australia, in 2004, for exchange of students for pursuing courses, exchange of academic staff for teaching and research, exchange of academic materials and also for cooperative research; the Law School, King's College, London, in 2005, for exchange of faculty as well as cooperative research; and the University of Warwick, U.K., in 2005 for exchange of faculty and cooperative research among others.
