Endless Terror

Nine terrorist attacks across India in 22 months claiming 500 innocent lives and no glimmer of any breakthrough in investigations is a sad reflection of security concerns of the country ("Groping in the Dark", June 4). The Government should appoint teams to probe into the matter and punish the guilty.

H.R. BAPU SATYANARAYANA, Mysore

Blasts in Hyderabad show terrorists are working to a game plan. It is very important and vital for the Muslims not to give shelter to anti-social and anti-national elements, merely on religious considerations. Why blame the Government alone? Citizens should shoulder the responsibility as well.

K.V. RAGHURAM, on e-mail

To plant a bomb inside the mosque is an act of cowardice. It's good that Hyderabadis did not fall prey to the sinister designs of communal rioters.

Guru's Attire

The standoff with Dera Sacha Sauda is nothing but a proxy war with the Congress because of the Dera's open allegiance to the party ("Fuelling the Fire", June 4). With no record of the Sikh Guru's attire, how does the Sikh clergy know what clothes were worn by the 10th guru, Guru Gobind Singh? The Government should take immediate steps to end this crisis as it might affect the party's agenda for economic growth.

Unhealthy Record

The neonatal mortality rates (NMR) for the country and Kerala are approximately 40 and 10 deaths per 1,000 livebirths, respectively ("Cradle of Death", May 21). With 50 babies being born at Sri Avittom Tirunal Children's Hospital everyday and 38 neonatal deaths having taken place in four months, the NMR for the hospital works out to be 6.3 newborn-deaths per 1,000 livebirths. These figures would do any institution proud. They must have been different from the ones reported.

COL (DR) ASHOK SAXENA, Delhi

The total number of neonatal deaths in SAT hospital in four months (January-April 2007) is 101, of which 38 newborns died of bacterial infection alone. This has put a question mark on Kerala's overall healthcare system.

THE RUPEE RISE

It's time the Government took some strong measures to curb the rise of the rupee ("The Rising", June 4). After all, it is not a natural growth. If not controlled now, it will bring the growth chariot to a grinding halt.

PRANJAL KAM GAUTAM, Delhi

Why should we worry about the rise of the rupee? It's yet another proof that Indian economy is heading in the right direction. It would be foolish on the part of the Government to intervene just to protect the interest of some exporters.

Musical Shift

Making his debut into the quagmire of Indian musicals is 42-year-old Shyam Benegal, the much talked of director of art films. Quick to defend his venture, Benegal knowledgeably stated, "I know many people will criticise me for this. But I have a legitimate reason for including songs in the film." His new film

Bhoomika, literally meaning Benegal "the role", is based on the autobiography of a Marathi actress. It portrays a woman successful in her career but frustrated in her personal life. With Smita Patil and Amol Palekar in the lead, this is Benegal's fourth feature film so far, with his usual cast of relatively small-time actors. "I prefer to work with them since there are fewer last minute problems while shooting," explained Benegal. Why a musical? "At some time or the other, there has to be a shift in emphasis in one's work," concluded the director.
