...AND MORE
TO DIE?

THE BUZZ OF THE WEEK

With the Congress nominee for the Presidential elections, Pranab Mukherjee, disinclined to move out of politics and many party wannabes finding no support, the chances of a consensus being worked out are brightening by the day.

VOICES

"I don't want to interfere with the media's judgement. But my appeal is that the incidents (Rajasthan violence) should not be shown repeatedly."

Priya Ranjan Dasmunshi, Union minister for information and broadcasting

"If the Congress decides to put up its candidates for the posts of President and vice-president, it will be for the party chief to decide on the nominees."

Janardhan Dwivedi, AICC general secretary

"We do need to be bolder than we are if we want to achieve 10 per cent growth. 10 per cent is not easy to achieve; only half a dozen countries have ever done it."

Montek Singh Ahluwalia, deputy chairperson of Planning Commission

"One day, things will be such that Sachin Tendulkar, V.V.S. Laxman, Rahul Dravid and Sourav Ganguly will be in contention for the coach's job but would never get it."

Kapil Dev, former cricketer

"There are so many people with so little thought. Indian cinema has hit rock bottom. It's a reflection of our spiritual and moral decay. It has lost its connect with Indian realities."

Mahesh Bhatt, filmmaker
