

film review

Puppy Love

NERA PEHLA PEHLA PYAAR

Starring: Hazel, Ruslaan

Mumtaz

Directed by: Robby Grewal

It is a tiny little film with no stars and a story of young love. Neither is a promising premise. But there is something endearing in its simplicity in a world where sex is supreme. Mumtaz is the son of an actor (Anjana Mumtaz) but he is not a star son. He is, however, quite delightful as a young boy falling in love with the

Hazel (left) and Mumtaz

recommendations

Open Windows

MUMBAI Sixteen luminescent paintings and sculptures titled 'Time Past, Time Present, Time to Come' are a journey through artist Babu Eshwar Prasad's mind. He takes the viewer into rooms without a fourth wall where inanimate objects take centre stage and appear to connect and converse with each other. In 'The Room is Empty, the Window is Open', an iron bed with a colourful dhurrie stands in the centre of a room with an open window. 'The Wrapping' is a painting of a white bundle which you are almost tempted to unwrap to see what lies inside. At Bodhi Art gallery till June 30.

A Prasad creation

by Aditi Pal

DELHI Sufi is the flavour of the season in the capital—be it sufi fashion, food, dance or music. The Indian Council for Cultural Relations presents a three-day festival of sufi music from June 28-30. The lineup is impressive. On the opening day, listen to ghazals and thumri in the full-throated voice of India-born Begum Fareeda Khanum from Pakistan. Tannoura new girl in class.

The milieu is borrowed by Grewal's own adolescence and the school doesn't look as if it has stepped out of an Archies comic book. The story needed a little more energy, though the climax—a frenetic 20-minute trip on the Parisian metro to Eiffel Tower—tries to make up for it.

This is not exactly Dilwale Dulhania Le Jayenge but it is an effort to show parents as they are now (friends rather than fuddy-duddies), fights as they happen (invariably in discotheques and always about a girl), and love as it grows (on borrowed credit cards and daddy's chauffeur driven cars). Grewal, who made the taut Samay, knows his subject. Now he needs a little more style.

by Kaveree Bamzai

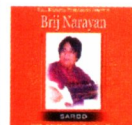

Fareeda Khanum

Sufi (Derwish) Folk and Dance Troupe from Egypt perform their colourful whirling dances on the following day. The festival closes with Pakistani Sufi and contemporary singer Adil Barki's performance. Great music should have melody, poetry and rhythm, and the festival promises just that in abundance. At Kamani Auditorium.

by S. Sahaya Ranjit

music review

New Emotions

Ram Narayan Foundation
Rs 250

BRIJ NARAYAN
Brij Narayan, the son of sarangi maestro Pandit Ram Narayan, chose to play the sarod instead of his father's favoured instrument. He has developed and perfected a style influenced by various features of Narayan's sarangi treatment, such as his taan sequences blended with some features of Ustad Ali Akbar Khan's sarod playing style. In this album Narayan plays the morning raga Bilaskhani Todi. The jod highlights the rhythmic phraseology beginning with the simple and culminating into layer of complex expression. It is followed by raga Mishra Piloo. The flight of improvisation has the elements of romanticism and playfulness.

Kosmic Music
Rs 125

ALBELA SAJJAN AYO RE
Hindustani vocalist Rashid Khan is sheer talent in terms of vocal range and virtuosity. He honed his prowess at a very young age under the tutelage of Ustad Nisar Hussain Khan of the Rampur Sahaswan gharana. In this album he sings short compositions and gives a flavour of the Ahir Bhairav, Desh, Chandradwani and Bhairavi ragas. He says the Chandradwani raga is his invention by combining the purvanga of chandrakauns and the uttaranga of Kaushidhwani. His new raga has not been played by other musicians yet. The melodic elaboration in the upper octaves is brilliant. His singing is a combination of emotional content and melodic elaboration. Explore an array of emotions.

by S. Sahaya Ranjit