

The country's leading hospital chains are expected to invest ₹40,000 crore to add more than 38,000 beds by 2030

A

AFTER ROTI, KAPDA and makaan, healthcare is the next big aspiration for millions of Indians. Prime Minister Narendra Modi, too, stressed this point in a series of posts on X in the middle of June, stating that health remains the core agenda of the government, which he said runs the world's largest healthcare scheme—Ayushman Bharat.

The remark came at a time the country's private hospital industry is entering one of its biggest expansion drives. From Manipal and Apollo to Max Healthcare, Fortis Healthcare, Medanta, Paras Health, and Yashoda Hospitals, India's leading hospital chains are adding beds, entering new markets, and raising fresh capital to fund growth—all at a frenetic pace.

Private equity is backing up with large investments, while wider insurance coverage is bringing more Indians into the formal healthcare system, giving hospital operators confidence to expand.

The numbers underline the scale of the effort. Crisil Ratings estimates hos-