

A LONG WAIT

The wait for the 57th meeting of the GST Council, which is set to take place after over a year, just got longer. While the meeting was initially scheduled for September 12, it has now been rescheduled to avoid a clash with the BRICS Leaders' Summit set to take place in the national capital on September 11 and 12. The GST Council is now likely to meet on October 7. Industry is keenly awaiting the new measures that the Council may announce.

SPICE SAGA

SpiceJet promoter Ajay Singh (pictured) has been busy arranging funds for various creditors, while its fleet is getting thinner, and capacity has been cut by 50% this month. However, the airline has finalised lease agreements with three aircraft operators for the induction of 20 aircraft as it prepares for a significant expansion of its operations during the upcoming winter schedule. The emergency credit support from the central government has come as a lifeline for the airline, which has been facing strong headwinds.

PINK OF HEALTH?

GDP estimates for Q1FY27 revealed that the economy managed to beat the blues of the West Asia war and clocked 7.8% growth. While it led to initial rejoicement, questions were soon raised over the new methodology. The government has defended the data underscoring the various data sources now being used, and several economists expect FY27 GDP growth to now be higher at over 7%. The Q2 data will give a clearer picture of how the economy fared despite the war.
