

Super Achievers

DEVITA SARAF

CHAIRPERSON & CEO,
VU TELEVISIONS

Devita Saraf, the Chairperson and CEO of Vu Group, is busy competing with global giants like Sony, Samsung, and LG. Saraf's long-term vision is to build Vu, the luxury TV brand she founded when she was just 24, into a globally recognised premium-tech player. Educated at USC and Harvard Business School, she established a product lab in California before scaling Vu into one of India's leading premium television companies.

DEVINA MEHRA

FOUNDER, CMD,
FIRST GLOBAL

Devina Mehra, Founder, Chairperson & Managing Director of First Global, a quantitative global asset-management firm, has seen many booms and busts in the markets. A gold medalist from both Lucknow University and IIM Ahmedabad, she started First Global, after she moved out of Citibank. Mehra is widely respected for her data-driven investment philosophy, and she's authored the book Money, Myths and Mantras. First Global Finance Pvt Ltd manages assets worth ₹297.5 crore.

DEVIKA BULCHANDANI

COO, WPP

That Indian women are making strides globally is by now a well-known fact. But it is still relatively rare in the world of advertising. Devika Bulchandani is one of those who have reached the top. After taking charge as Global CEO of Ogilvy in September 2022, she was bumped up as WPP's COO a few months ago. Apart from Ogilvy, WPP also owns VML, AKQA, WPP Media and Landor, to name a few. With scale comes clout and for Bulchandani, it is time to navigate WPP through very interesting times.
