RAVNEET KAUR

CHAIRPERSON, COMPETITION COMMISSION OF INDIA

The first woman to head the Competition Commission of India and the second woman ever to lead a regulatory body in the country, Ravneet Kaur, Chairperson, CCI, has her hands full. In her over two-and-a-half year stint at the CCI, Kaur has worked on countless initiatives, including the proposed Digital Competition Bill and has had to wade into the largely uncharted territory of regulating the new economy—ranging from Big Tech to quick commerce. This year was especially busy for Kaur, who briefly also held the interim charge of National Financial Reporting Authority as Chairperson and oversaw a market study on the impact of AI on competition.
