T IS A LITTLE past 6 pm and Jinal Mehta slowly settles into his chair. The past month has been frenetic for the Vice Chairman and Managing Director of Torrent Power.

First off, there was the buyout of Nabha Power in Punjab from L&T, followed by the unveiling of a new brand identity for the group, which also has a presence in gas, pharmaceuticals, electricals, and diagnostics. The brand identity indicates a new B2C (business-to-consumer) thrust. "That is what we are doing at the group level too with both Torrent Power and Torrent Gas aggressively targeting the B2C segment. Even on renewables, we are tying up PPAs (power purchase agreements) with commercial and industrial customers," he says.

The branding refresh was the first such exercise by the group in four decades. "Perhaps, there was no need to refresh the brand (all these years) since it still looked contemporary. But we felt it was necessary now as the group starts to look at more B2C businesses," says Mehta.
