patients who may have difficulty swallowing tablets. The company has also in-licensed biosimilar candidates such as pembrolizumab and ranibizumab as part of its expansion in global markets.

Beyond prescription medicines, Patel has also laid strong emphasis on expanding the company's consumer wellness business. "In our existing business, we hold leadership position across multiple product categories in India," he says.

The segment operates with more than 2,600 field personnel and nearly 2,000 distributors covering more than 2.6 million retail outlets across the country.

More recently, the company entered the digital vitamins and supplements market through the acquisition of the US-based firm Comfort Click. "Comfort Click has a strong presence in the UK and the EU and is building its presence in the US," says Patel.

The company's financial performance over the past three years reflects the outcome of these strategic efforts. In FY25, profit after tax was ₹4,615 crore, on gross sales of ₹45,681 crore. Return on equity was a healthy 21%.

Patel highlights the company's workforce profile. Around 61% employees are under 35.

He says this plays a role in strengthening research and innovation capabilities, digital tools, and data-driven approaches.

In the future, advancing innovation pipelines in regulated markets and strengthening the presence across global healthcare segments will continue to guide the company's direction. BT
