The intention, he explains, was always global-first and not India-only. “Tequila is inherently a global category, and credibility comes from performing well in mature markets before expanding,” says Daggubati. His role, he says, is that of “founder-custodian”: involved in product integrity and long-term brand architecture.

At present, Loca Loka is available at select stores, including in Delhi, Mumbai, Goa and Bangalore. In Delhi, Loca Loka Blanco is priced at ₹5,250 and Loca Loka Reposado at ₹6,350.

Cricketer Yuvraj Singh, best known for his winning sixes, has also entered the tequila market with FINO along with a collective of Indian American entrepreneurs. The tequila, available in four variants—Blanco, Rosado, Reposado and, Añejo—was launched in the US in February 2025 and came to India in August. “Tequila is a drink with deep roots, incredible craftsmanship, and a complex, bold character. It aligns beautifully with the kind of brand I wanted to create—one that celebrates strength, perseverance, and living life with purpose,” says Yuvraj Singh, Chief Shot Caller, FINO Tequila. “The name itself—FINO or ‘Failure Is Not an Option’—echoes my life journey,” he adds.

Available at premium retail outlets across Haryana, Delhi, and Maharashtra, as well as duty-free stores in Delhi, Ahmedabad and Mumbai, FINO will expand into new markets in the coming years. Blanco is priced at ₹13,889, Rosado at ₹34,038, while Reposado sells for ₹19,175 and Añejo for ₹30,478 in Delhi.
