

Between shots, conversations flowed easily, finding their way into the walk between fairways. BT Golf once again proved that its strength lies as much in these exchanges as in the competition itself—where shared challenges create genuine connections.

Adding intellectual weight to the day was the presence of Eswara Rao Nandam, Chief Executive Officer of Polymatech Electronics, as the Chief Guest. One of India's early pioneers in semiconductors, Polymatech is key to the country's ambition to build a domestic chip ecosystem. Speaking at the event, Nandam reflected on why semiconductors are no longer just a technology story but an economic imperative, and spoke of India's opportunity to move beyond consumption into manufacturing and design, and of the discipline required to build deep-tech capabilities at scale - a message that resonated strongly with an audience navigating long-term bets of their own.

On the course, moments of excellence emerged. Hole 16 rewarded absolute control, as Pradeep Swaminathan, Managing Director of Beck & Call Business Services, delivered a textbook strike to win the Indian Oil Corporation Straightest Drive — a shot that embodied the day's emphasis on discipline over drama.
