more on accessories like bags and shoes," says Kumar.

Even Indianwear brands are focussing on men. While traditionally, expenditure for womenswear was higher in weddings, menswear is catching up. This also holds true for occasion wear. Couturier Tarun Tahiliani opened his first men's only store in Mumbai in 2023. Similarly, designer Rimzim Dadu, known for her avant-garde designs, opened her first menswear store in New Delhi's DLF Emporio mall in 2023.

Aditya Birla Fashion and Retail Limited bought a 33% stake in Tarun Tahiliani's existing business in 2021 and also established a new company, Tasva—a contemporary men's ethnic wear brand—with the goal of selling ₹500 crore worth of men's ethnic clothes and accessories in five years.

Many such collaborations are on the anvil, and with men increasingly spending more on themselves, the men's luxury sector is only going to keep growing from here. BT
