

ADANI GROUP JOINS HANDS WITH ISKCON TO OFFER MAHAPRASAD SEVA AT MAHA KUMBH MELA

The diversified conglomerate also collaborates with Gita Press to print around 10 million copies of Aarti Sangrah, which is being distributed free of cost at the largest gathering of humanity in the world.

The Adani Group has partnered with the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) to offer the Mahaprasad Seva at the ongoing Maha Kumbh Mela in Prayagraj, Uttar Pradesh. The humanitarian service provides meals to approximately 100,000 devotees daily. About 2,500 volunteers prepare the meals in kitchens equipped with advanced facilities. The food is served on eco-friendly plates made of leaves and distributed at several assembly points on the mela premises.

In addition, the Adani Group provided 100 golf carts for differently-abled individuals, elderly people, and children before the state government replaced the service with two-wheelers after a tragic stampede resulted in the deaths of several devotees during the early hours of Mauni Amavasya on January 29. The conglomerate has also collaborated with the Gorakhpur-headquartered Gita Press to print around 10 million copies of the Aarti Sangrah, a compilation of devotional hymns dedicated to deities such as Shiva, Lakshmi, Ganesha, Vishnu, Durga, and others. These books are distributed free of cost at the largest gathering of humanity in the world.
