

THE GOOD LIFE

TRENDS

VINE TO VINO

Calling all wine lovers to explore India's wine trails and vineries

BY SMITA TRIPATHI

M

MUMBAI-BASED RAPPER DIVINE, singer Kabeer Kathpalia aka OAFF, Ritviz, When Chai Met Toast—this was not the line-up of a music concert in Delhi or Mumbai, but of Nasik's SulaFest. The 14th edition of the wine and music festival at Sula Vineyards made a splash this February, coming back after a five-year break.

Several thousand people—primarily from Nasik, Gujarat, Mumbai, Pune and Bangalore—bought tickets worth ₹3,000 each to enjoy a weekend of great food, wine and music, reaffirming Rajeev Samant's faith in India's wine tourism. Samant, the CEO and founder of Sula Vineyards who is celebrating 25 years of pioneering India's wine industry, always believed that tourism was going to be an extension of vinification.

"I went to a university in California, and I saw what they had created in Napa Valley, which is by far the global