

Can we make every Indian fly at least once a year by the time we celebrate the 100th year of Independence?

Domestic manufacturing of aircraft and components would need to be taken up on priority, like in the space sector.

A lower rate will make GST fairer, and less inflationary, and will increase compliance and reduce evasion

The authorities must further reduce import tariffs—a theme pursued in the last two Budgets.

State governments have all the powers to enact (farm) reforms, but very few have shown the willingness to go ahead

Tariffs are best adopted temporarily for initially protecting competitive infant industries

Economic progress creates inequality... Understanding that helps not just investors but also other decision-makers

India will need to execute on the basics, and to be a global leader, that means investing across the AI stack

The key in the market is understanding that no theme lasts forever. No country. No geography. No asset class.

India's challenge is simple: our mass prosperity is held back by wages rather than jobs...

As AI automates various tasks, India must proactively think about how it can create AI-proof jobs

For this to be India's century, it needs to improve the lives of the 950 million Indians living lives of quiet desperation.

The societal value created by public enterprises cannot be gauged by the financial value they create for investors.

There is a prima facie case to give the RBI the character of a Federal Reserve Bank