

“In the last seven years, average FDI that came into India was $71 billion; in the seven-year period before that, it was $41 billion, and in the seven-year period prior to that, it was $18 billion” digital—remains a focus, as it binds all of us. Once I knew my focus areas, I started building value chains in terms of components and countries from where we can source them. We also looked at companies that can manufacture them, and our target markets. We built a road map for every sector and sub-sector based on this. I have a road map for companies that I want to chase, I have a policy modification road map that I want to enable. We are also doing analytics in such a way that it is logic-driven with macroeconomics, geopolitics, treaties, partnerships, JVs, manufacturing
