Solving jigsaw puzzles is more than just a leisurely activity for some; it could also be a journey through the lanes of nostalgia back to childhood, where every piece holds a memory waiting to be uncovered. As fingers delicately piece together fragments of colourful landscapes or vivid images, one is taken over by a sense of excitement reminiscent of simpler times. Each puzzle becomes a portal to a world of imagination, where challenges are conquered one piece at a time, and triumph is celebrated with every completed section. Therefore, it isn't surprising that Nupur Garg—a seasoned venture capitalist—is not only known for her astute business acumen but also for her abiding passion for solving jigsaw puzzles.

For Garg, who is the Founder of Winpe, a platform dedicated to advancing gender equality in the private equity space, this seemingly simple hobby has become an integral part of her life. She also learns problem-solving and leadership through this. She points out that puzzles were a ubiquitous part of her childhood. "Puzzles are something that we all grow up with," she explains. "My parents exposed me to all sorts of puzzles, and I enjoyed them then, and I continue to enjoy
