

STAKE HUNT

The Kedias and the Jhuhjhunwalas aren't the only prominent market players who hunt for start-ups. Mukul Mahavir Agrawal, Chairman & Founder of Param Capital, holds a listed portfolio of more than ₹5,000 crore. According to Trendlyne data, he is the latest star of the Indian stock market, as the value of his listed portfolio soared 1,417% since the Covid-19 lows of ₹337.49 crore in March 2020. He is also known for picking little-known and small-cap stocks from bourses.

Agrawal holds around 3% stake in Ketto, an online crowdfunding platform for social causes. He also holds 6.7% in Credilio, an online marketplace for personal loans. On March 31, 2022, he invested ₹5 crore for a 0.9% stake in Fantasy Akhada, a sports platform for fantasy games. That investment is worth ₹8.8 crore, according to Tracxn. Valuations of unlisted start-ups usually change because of factors such as cash flows, funding rounds, earnings, and working capital, among others.

In edtech, Agrawal holds a 3.15% stake in LogIQids worth ₹1.3 crore. He also holds a 1.3% stake in SpeEdLabs, a tech-enabled tutoring platform for competitive exams. His SpeEdLabs stake is worth ₹2.1 crore at present, up 1.4 times against the investment of ₹1.5 crore.

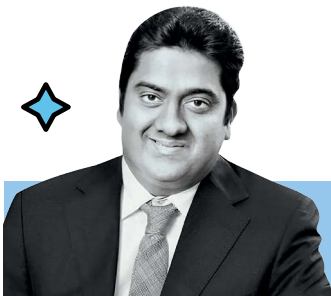

"I do not have any fixed strategy. I look for mature start-ups, and promoters should be solving a problem through their start-up. Overall, the business idea should be solid, and the start-up should not be founded
