Prashant Shivan, a New Delhi-based HR consultant, was excitedly looking forward to his annual college reunion in December last year. Five of his friends and their families from India and across the globe were planning to holiday together in Kodagu (earlier Coorg). There was only one glitch. One couple had recently adopted a dog and now they needed a place that could not only accommodate the large group but also their furry friend.

“Earlier, we generally just booked hotels but since this time my friends were going to travel with their dog, we decided to check out a villa as an option,” he recalls. Shivan and his friends booked the Pollibetta Bungalow in Kodagu through amā Stays & Trails, a premium homestay offering by The Indian Hotels Company Ltd (IHCL), which also owns
