

IN THE LAP OF LUXURY

With an increase in consumer purchasing power, luxury retail is likely to expand to Tier II cities such as Jaipur and Ludhiana by 2047

Gen Z will be middle-aged consumers by 2047 and there is likely to be an even more increased focus on sustainability. Luxury will not just be about owning the best but also about investing in what resonates personally and culturally with them

Over the next two decades, there will be many more 'Made in India' luxury brands going global

Going forward, factors such as the growing economy, salary growth from the high-paying services sector and growth in the number of HNIs and UHNIs will continue to raise demand for luxury housing in India

Indian luxury travellers will become more global in their thinking and will be keen to visit places where no one else is going and enjoy experiences that are transformational
