N INDIA, A land where tradition and modernity collide with every sunrise, a quiet revolution is reshaping the furniture industry. For decades, the Indian furniture market has been synonymous with local craftsmanship and heritage brands, steeped in history. But, this landscape is gradually transforming to become a vibrant playground for global luxury brands.

International names such as Poltrona Frau, Pottery Barn and IKEA have introduced their design philosophies and craftsmanship to the Indian market. The $20-billion Indian furniture market—the fourth-largest globally—is expected to see a CAGR (compound annual growth rate) of 14% to reach $34 billion
