

LOVE ART, WILL TRAVEL

Whether you are an art collector or enthusiast, here are six art fairs globally worth visiting “Art washes away from the soul the dust of everyday life”

– Pablo Picasso

At the dawn of 2024, with the pandemic and the ensuing lockdown seeming rather distant, more and more people are turning to art to clean their souls, as said by Picasso. Of course, cleaning souls is easier when you are a millionaire. According to the Art Basel and UBS Survey of Global Collecting 2023, collectors with liquid assets of over $1 million on an average attended four art fairs last year, and more than half made purchases at these fairs. This year, the number of art fairs worldwide is expected to reach 377, according to the Art Market 2023 report. This is a major jump from 2020, when it dropped to 133, but it is still not quite as high as 408, the number in 2019. Whether you are a serious collector or just someone who likes looking at art, here is our pick of some of the must-visit art fairs this year. So, mark your calendars.

◀ India Art Fair, New Delhi

The 2024 edition of the India Art Fair will be the largest to date, with more than a hundred exhibitors, comprising galleries, institutions, and design studios showcasing cutting-edge contemporary art and design, pieces of South Asian living traditions, and modern masters. There has been an incremental increase in exhibitors' participation over the years. From 66 exhibitors in 2016 to 105 participants in 2024, the fair is witnessing a consistent growth trajectory. “One of our biggest achievements for the 15th edition of the fair has been to introduce our inaugural design section at the fair, featuring pioneering design studios from India and beyond making waves in collectable, handmade, and limited edition design,” says Jaya Asokan, Fair Director, India Art Fair.
