

According to Amnish Aggarwal, Head of Research at financial services firm Prabhudas Lilladher, Dabur's top-line performance over the past eight or nine years has been mixed. Two things queered the pitch. First, it faced severe challenges in its businesses abroad, which account for nearly a quarter of its consolidated sales, as the economies slowed. Second, because of currency fluctuations, international sales translated into smaller numbers. "Barring one year, in the past five or seven years, the growth rate of its subsidiaries has been in single digits. During this period, in two-three years, they have reported de-growth in sales due to multiple factors like distribution issues and slowdown in some of the Middle-eastern markets and currency volatility," he says.

In the April-June quarter, Dabur's international business grew by 20.6 per cent in constant currency terms but only 10.2 per cent when adjusted for deprecia-

MOHIT MALHOTRA
CEO, DABUR
INDIA

"Things are looking up as we see, and our first quarter results also portrayed the same result. In terms of competitive intensity, ours were by far better results"

HOME COMFORTS

► The share of Dabur's domestic business continues to grow ► In spite of currency volatility and uncertainty in some of its markets, the company posted double-digit growth in constant currency terms in the international market

DABUR'S GLOBAL BUSINESS

■ MIDDLE-EAST
■ ASIA
■ AFRICA
■ AMERICAS
■ EUROPE

SOURCE COMPANY

SHIFTING BALANCE

► The Covid-19 pandemic-related changes in consumption patterns boosted its healthcare business ► Revenue from the food & beverages division has jumped

