

TRADING STYLE

- Share of algo trades on the NSE increased in FY23
- However, co-location trades saw a dip in share in the overall trading volume on both the exchanges

- FOW-NOW (FASTRADE ON WEB-NSE ON WEB) SMART ORDER ROUTING
- DIRECT MARKET ACCESS INTERNET-BASED TRADING
- ALGO NON-ALGO MOBILE CO-LOCATION SOURCE SEBI

GROWING CLOUT

- The share of retail investors in total turnover has risen over the years
- DII and retail combined account for nearly half of the total turnover

- RETAIL DII FPI; NOTE THESE ARE THE THREE MAIN CATEGORIES OF INVESTORS SOURCE NSE

TRADE FAIR

- The NSE leads by a wide margin in terms of turnover
- However, both exchanges—BSE and NSE—saw a dip in turnover in FY23

- NSE BSE SOURCE BSE, NSE

size to attract more issuers and investors. “On average, every year, two to three new REITs will get listed, and the existing REITs will keep adding new assets. REIT is a hybrid story of saying that there is yield and growth,” says V. Jayasankar, Managing Director, Kotak Investment Banking.

“You will have activity in a significant manner in many of the existing REITs... So, you will have new entrants plus consolidation playing out,” he adds.

On a different note, the SSE, which had its first listing in December with the SGBS Unnati Foundation, is another segment that is bound to create headlines. At a time when impact investing is gaining popularity globally, the SSE will see an increasing number of both for-profit and not-for-profit entities tapping the highly regulated capital market segment—believed to have already garnered interest from 40 firms.

Apart from product and pace, the coming years will see a notable change in the trading style as well, with an increasing number of investors using algorithms—algos in popular parlance—even as the clout of domestic investors—direct retail investors along with mutual funds and insurance companies—will strengthen further and act as a strong counterforce to foreign portfolio investors (FPIs).

In a nutshell, the Indian stock market will not just be about stocks in the next five years, but will evolve into a one-stop shop for all kinds of financial instruments that will help channel more household savings towards a transparent and well-regulated market. BT

@ashishrukhaiyar