- ▶ Multimedia messaging platform Snapchat, which is targeted towards the 13-34 age group, recently hit 200 million monthly users in India, a country it entered in 2019
- ▶ India's vast young population works to the advantage of Snap, the company that developed Snapchat, and it has set its sights on attaining 500 million monthly users in India
- ▶ Experts say India as a market for social media is underpenetrated, and has high potential. Plus, its young population means that Snap's next wave of users will come from markets like India
- ▶ Snap says its AR offering has immense value for advertising and e-commerce players as it will lead to a potential customer being able to 'try on' something before buying it
- ▶ The overall addressable market for Snap in India by the end of the decade, say experts, will be a billion users; and that can translate into revenue of $4 billion from the country
