A KEY THEME at the forum this year was artificial intelligence (AI) and its potential and risk. No wonder that an entire pavilion—the AI House—on the Davos promenade was dedicated to this most defining technology of our generation.

Speaking at the forum, Sam Altman, CEO of OpenAI, said it was good that AI technology was being subject to a lot of debate. “We have our own nervousness, but we believe that we can manage through it, and the only way to do that is to put the technology in the hands of people.”

Microsoft CEO Satya Nadella, whose company has invested billions of dollars in OpenAI, said the “biggest lesson learnt is we have to
