"The hassles I faced [led me to] solve the market for used two-wheeler bikes," he says. In 2018, Chhazed and his IIT mate Harsh Saruparia co-founded OTO Capital. The platform streamlines the buying process, providing a one-stop-solution where customers can research, schedule test drives, explore flexible financing options, and complete purchases online. OTO—which posted revenue of ₹36.5 crore, and a loss of ₹30.5 crore in FY23—also simplifies electric two-wheeler ownership with a unique lease-ownership model that offers up to 30 per cent cheaper EMIs. Their lending partners include Suryoday Small Finance Bank, Northern Arc, Western Capital, Bank of India and IDFC First Bank, among others. BT

Both passed out from IIT (she from Delhi and he from Kharagpur), and they went on to study management at Indian School of Business in Hyderabad. They finally met when working at McKinsey, and in 2015, they founded OfBusiness, an online B2B marketplace for raw materials for SMEs. A year later, they set up Oxyzo Financial Services, as OfBusiness's financial services division, along with Vasant Sridhar, Bhuvan Gupta, and Nitin Jain. With the support of investors like Tiger Global, Norwest, and Matrix, it has developed into a separate entity, and a key player in providing unsecured credit to over 5,000 SMEs, and a loan book of more than ₹5,500 crore. Oxyzo closed FY23 with revenue of ₹570 crore and profit of ₹197 crore.

As Mohapatra and Ruchi navigate the fast-changing world of business, their partnership continues to shine. BT
