COVERED THAT BORING WORKS

BY DHIRENDRA KUMAR

ago, when someone mentioned mutual funds, the typical response involved confusion with cooperatives or perhaps even chit funds. The few who understood were treated with suspicion. Why would you give your money to strangers to invest when your brother-in-law was an 'agent'? Why pay fees when bank fixed deposits and PPF are always there? The answer, it turns out, wasn't in the products themselves but in what they made possible: a process that worked even when you didn't.
