

HOW ADANI GREEN TALKS 2025 AIMS TO SHAPE INDIA'S SUSTAINABLE FUTURE

At the annual event, sustainability met storytelling in a powerful dialogue that united business leadership, innovators and changemakers. From Adani Group Chairman Gautam Adani's call for climate courage to Bharat Biotech's Executive Chairman Dr Krishna Ella and National Award-winning actor Vikrant Massey's reflections on purpose, the programme spotlighted how India's green transition is being shaped by those who dare to imagine a better tomorrow

In an era where sustainability is redefining the boundaries of growth, Green Talks 2025 emerged as a beacon of what collective action can achieve. Curated by the Adani Group, the platform brought together thought leaders, industry pioneers and grassroots innovators to share stories of courage and commitment — to the planet, to people and to progress. Chairman Gautam Adani set the tone with a stirring message on “courage as the cornerstone of transformation.” He spoke of how true leadership lies in the willingness to take risks that create long-term value for communities and the climate. “Every green investment we make today,” he said, “is an investment in the moral fabric of the future.”

Under his stewardship, the Adani Group has emerged as one of the world's largest renewable energy players — on track to generate 45 gigawatt (GW) of green power by 2030, a feat that anchors India's clean energy ambitions.

Where Innovation Meets Impact

The 2025 edition of Green Talks featured Dr Krishna Ella, Executive Chairman of Bharat Biotech, and National Award-winning actor Vikrant Massey, who brought two distinct but complementary perspectives. Dr Ella underscored how innovation thrives when driven by national purpose — citing India's vaccine revolution as proof of science serving humanity. Massey reflected on the
