

Scan here for the full video of the interview

BT EVENT • AI ROUND TABLE

INDIA'S AI AMBITIONS

(From left) Shailendra Bhatnagar, Chief Analyst & Editor, BT; Apoorve Goyal, Managing Director, Prosus; Rahul Taneja, Partner, Lightspeed; Siddharth Pai, Co-founder, 3one4 Capital, Co-Chair Regulatory Affairs Committee at IVCA; Nithin Kaimal, Partner & Chief Operating Officer, Bessemer Venture Partners India

» Goyal said that in personal assessment, India's biggest advantage is the data it generates due to the population scale and that would help the country create its own AI models

» Taneja said consumer space and the enterprise space were the two sectors where investors and entrepreneurs are likely to make a lot of money in the next two years

» Pai said a large amount of money is chasing AI assets because of uncertainty in the markets and a non-zero interest rate environment at present

» Kaimal said that India has a $400 billion opportunity in artificial intelligence. He also said that there would be a step change in outsourcing in the sector over the next three-five years due to AI

104 |

AI PLAYBOOK FOR INDIA

(From left) Shashidhar Ramakrishnaiah, CTO, Fractal; Kshitij Khandelwal, CTO, Pixxel; Harsh Dhand, Global Product Partnerships, Google Research, Google; Vidya Shankar Shetty, Pro Vice Chancellor, Presidency University Bengaluru

» Ramakrishnaiah said startups play a crucial role in driving real adoption. "The energy and risk-taking ability of startups inspire large enterprises to reimagine what's possible," he said

» Khandelwal said space-tech startup Pixxel is redefining how AI is applied to earth observation

» Dhand highlighted Google's recent $15 billion investment to set up one of its largest AI innovation hubs in the country. "This will create the foundational infrastructure, data sets, compute power, and models to empower researchers and start-ups," he said

» "Students today are far more aware, adaptive, curious," Shetty said, and highlighted that more women were enrolling in AI and tech courses, which must be encouraged