

TOP OUTBO

• The mindset surrounding global expansion has undergone a significant shift

ACQUIRER	TARGET	YEAR
Tata Steel	Corus	2007
Bharti Airtel	Zain Africa BV	2010
Adani Group	Ambuja Cement Ltd and ACC Ltd*	2022
Hindalco Industries	Novelis Inc	2007
UPL Ltd	Arysta Lifescience Inc	2018
Bharti Enterprises Ltd	British Telecom Group Plc	2024
Adani Green Energy Ltd	SB Energy India	2021
Biocon Ltd	Viartis Inc.	2022
ONGC Videsh Ltd	Imperial Energy PLC	2008
Cognizant Technology Solutions	TriZetto Corp	2014
ONGC Videsh Ltd	Rovuma Area 1 Offshore Block	2013
Hindalco Industries Ltd- Novelis Inc	Aleris Corporation	2018
Oil India Ltd, ONGC Videsh Ltd	Rovuma Area 1 Offshore Block	2013
Tata Motors Ltd	Jaguar & Land Rover	2008

EXPRESS YOURSELF, IN AFRICA
Bharti Airtel completed its acquisition of mobile operations from Africa's Zain Group in 2010 is another fitting example, starting with assembling International Harvester, then manufacturing its own, and eventually becoming the world's largest by volume. "We steadily pushed the boundaries of what was possible for an Indian company." The companies acquired over the years include SsangYong Motor Company, Peugeot Motorcycles, Reva Electric Car Company, Jiangling Tractor Company, and Kinetic Motor Company.

PHOTO BY GETTY IMAGES

According to Romal Shetty, CEO, Deloitte South Asia, the M&A route fast-tracks a company's foray into a market. "A good example is Tata Motors' buyout of JLR. It gave them a presence across multiple markets, which otherwise would have taken a lot of time," he says.

The approach in each case varies depending on the industry. Girish Ramachandran, President (Growth Markets), TCS, outlines two things that his company did.

"If we had to be a multinational, it meant working with local com-