

GET MOVING ON LABOUR LAW REFORMS

► With an estimated seven-eight million people joining the labour force annually, India needs to up its game in taking forward labour law reforms and creating adequate jobs. It must work harder to shift workers from informal to formal employment. This will not only give them a decent living wage but also social security benefits. Lowering regulatory hurdles and compliances and notifying the stalled Labour Codes will go a long way towards achieving this. It also give businesses the confidence to set up shop and employ more workers.

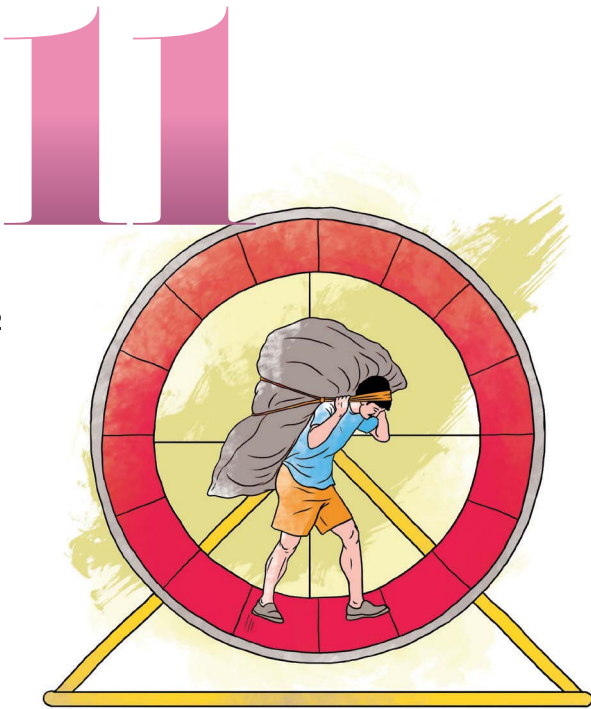

12

REIMAGINE, REFORM LAND ACQUISITION NORMS

► One of the biggest challenges in setting up large projects in India is acquisition of large tracts of contiguous land parcels. States' land banks are often not enough. Acquiring large tracts of land is an arduous and time-consuming affair prone to litigation and protests. Higher compensation to farmers and a greater say to states along with a review of the stalled Land Acquisition Act and Ordinance may be the way forward.

22

A GST FOR VIKSIT BHARAT

► Chugging along for eight years now, the Goods and Services Tax (GST) may not be perfect, but it has definitely had a positive impact on businesses and the tax kitty. However, it needs to be simplified and rationalised, and now. Three rates, instead of the current five, could lower the tax burden and bring more clarity. The revamped GST must subsume currently excluded items like electricity, alcohol, petrol, diesel and real estate to become a more comprehensive levy.

13

