

ROAD TO A DEVELOPED NATION

THE BT INDIA@100 SUMMIT HOSTED THE COUNTRY'S LEADERS AND SECTOR SPECIALISTS TO DELIBERATE ON INDIA'S ROADMAP TO ACHIEVING THE VIKSIT BHARAT STATUS BY 2047

BY TEAM BT

INDIA wants to achieve a developed nation status by 2047, its centennial year of Independence. However, even after being the fastest-growing large economy, multiple challenges remain—from financing hurdles in building the infrastructure of tomorrow to ensuring access to better healthcare and education to a burgeoning population.

'Blueprint For a Developed Nation' was the theme of the event organised by Business Today on Friday, August 8, in New Delhi to discuss the road map for India to achieve its 2047 goals. Stalwarts and sector experts weighed on a to-do list. Union Minister Piyush Goyal underscored India's economic resilience amid US tariffs. Economist Arvind Panagariya

▲ (Left to right) Alok Nair, Chief Operating Officer, Business Today, Siddharth Zarabi, Group Editor, BT, Nitin Gadkari, Union Minister for Road, Transport & Highways, and Kalli Purie, Vice Chairperson and Executive Editor-in-Chief, India Today Group, unveiling the India@100 edition

urged a trade pivot; Union Minister Nitin Gadkari flagged pivotal investments in infrastructure; and former G20 Sherpa Amitabh Kant called for calm, strategic engagement to tackle the changing geopolitical order. A shared sense of direction and enthusiasm marked the event—India appears well-positioned to fulfil its ambition of becoming Viksit by 2047!