

A TRILLION-DOLLAR COMPANY

Romal Shetty,
CEO, Deloitte
South Asia

- Speaking with Siddharth Zarabi, Shetty argued that India's strength in services must evolve into product-plus-services models
- On AI, he said he sees a long-term opportunity and not a disruption

SUNRISE SECTORS

Rajat Dhawan, Managing
Partner, McKinsey India

- Dhawan pointed to sectors like AI, green energy, digital services, semiconductors, as key to India's long-term growth strategy, adding that workforce transformation, private investment, and regulatory frameworks will shape these domains challenges, and Magazine highlighted shortage of skilled talent as a key issue

- Talking about Indian companies and their potential, Gossain said innovation is one area where India excels
- "Talking about India's growth trajectory, Sharma said, "This threshold [in a growing per capita income] marks a potential unlock point for demand"
- Chiming in, Chaudhry said India is becoming the destination for providing quality healthcare

GEN NEXT'S MONEY GAME

(From top) Sarthak Ahuja,
Author; & Director, Niamh
Ventures
Rachana Ranade, Founder,
Rachana Ranade &
Associates
Mukul Malik, Founder,
AssetYogi
Sanjay Kathuria, Finance
Coach

- Ahuja warned of a growing culture where peer pressure, social media influence, and easy credit have normalised debt-fueled lifestyles
- Echoing the concern, Malik pointed to rising risk appetite among young Indians
- Kathuria said, "People don't understand the difference between good debt and bad debt"
- Ranade pointed to the importance of realistic financial goals, noting India's economic disparities

NO ONE LEFT BEHIND

(From top) Rukmini Banerji, CEO, Pratham
Yamini Aiyar, Public Policy Expert

- Speaking about inclusivity in the development journey, Aiyar highlighted the systemic flaws in governance where decisions taken far from the grassroots often fail to address local realities
- Banerji underscored the importance of having a citizen-led movement in building a sustainable ecosystem

