

Luxury properties are maintained well, have a good subset of residents and their aspiration enables capital to appreciate micro market,” says Noaman.

Ravi Shankar Singh, Managing Director, Residential Services, Colliers India, says that unlike in the 2012-2015 period, luxury houses are being bought by those who don’t have financial pressures —millennials with parents’ backing, start-up founders with fresh funds, high-earning company executives who have sold previous houses and investors with surplus money. Ohri of DLF says NRIs are 30% of buyers. Shalin Raina,

Managing Director, Residential Segment, Cushman & Wakefield, says, “Post-Covid, NRIs stepped up investments in India because they wanted a pad in India and also because it is one of the fastest-developing economies.”

Price itself creates a premium position followed by size, location, views, specifications and amenities. Premium homes are on the cusp between homes and hospitality. Services loaded onto the unit have been drawn from the hospitality sec-
