entertainment industries, owners of large businesses and CXOs who can afford to buy ultra-premium homes. The Bengaluru market is driven by information technology CXOs, start-up owners and business owners.

In Bengaluru, large plots and villas and even apartments of over 6,000 sq ft are in demand. The affluent upper middle class, which earns ₹1-2 crore per year, buys one step below the CXO level. Hyderabad's luxury buyers have business incomes and like larger homes.

Today, with people buying multiple homes, is the rate of return important?

Noaman says people buy for capital appreciation. Those properties are maintained well, have a good subset of residents and their aspiration enables capital to appreciate.

Real estate marketplace Square Yards said in a statement citing registration records that actor Amitabh Bachchan bought a 5,704 sq. ft. house in Oshiwara, Mumbai, for ₹31 crore in April 2021 and leased it to actor Kriti Sanon for ₹10 lakh a month. She paid a deposit of ₹60 lakh.

In 2025, Bachchan sold the unit for ₹83 crore, booking a 168% profit. This is the value of investing in premium units at the right time.

STEADY DEMAND

Sudhir Pai, CEO, Magicbricks Realty Services, says despite significant price rise in places like the National Capital Region, quarterly demand in the region still rose 5% for three straight quarters, led by a mix of investors and end users. This seems to have flattened somewhat now. The Magicbricks Sentiment Index reveals that at least 40% consumers were still searching for investment in 2025.

Notes Pai, "Our Sentiment Index study indicates that up to 40% of buyers are looking to buy for investment purposes. At a project level, tor. Even the residential cluster has the feel of a resort. The super luxury quotient is enhanced by a resort-like experience within the complex, as in Silverglades' Legacy project in Gurugram where "Aravali views are protected and green cover is up to 85% within the complex," says promoter Anubhav Jain.
