PUNE, AHMEDABAD ARE EMERGING AS THE NEW
LUXURY HOTSPOTS

20-80% of first sales are to investors. This is happening due to attractive pre-launch arbitrages. The frequency of price hikes has also come down and we find price increases moderating. Prices have doubled in several localities in five years but the demand has not petered out. There is still strong demand even at current prices, indicating that there is more headroom for prices to grow further.” The question is: will it hold up at scale. Luxury housing can be broadly classified across categories—ranging from affordable luxury to premium and ultra-luxury—based on several defining factors, says developer Niranjana Hiranandani. These factors include the size of the property, location, quality of construction, curated amenities, views, neighbourhood profile, opulence of the design and the exclusivity of the lifestyle offered.

“Each element contributes to the positioning of a project within the luxury spectrum, shaping both its market appeal and its value proposition,” Hiranandani adds.

Prashant Bindal, Chief Sales Officer at Lodha Developers Ltd, says, “Our luxury projects are not just defined by state-of-the-art design, world-class amenities, and thoughtfully planned layouts, but go far beyond to truly redefine modern luxury.”

Hiranandani says this shift marks a growing preference for aspirational, high-quality living in better pin codes. The location or pin code was a critical factor in Mumbai's purchases, which announced social status.

Select pin codes such as Mahalaxmi, Marine Lines, Lower Parel, Bandra, Worli and Andheri won the favour of aspirational buyers. The suburbs of Thane, Navi Mumbai and Panvel all won some part of the luxury tag, too. Strong redevelopment across the city also ensured a steady supply of affordable homes and freed land for luxury projects.

For those who cannot afford those pin codes, luxury specifications of size and quality in a newer address would also make for premium property. This is where the new address makers come in. For brands like M3M and Signature Global, the new address makers in Gurugram, infrastructure has been the road to a new corridor of growth.

Robin Mangla, President, M3M India, says, “Infrastructure corridors like Southern Peripheral Road and Dwarka Expressway are transformative forces for real estate markets, particularly in mid-income and premium segments. Their impact goes beyond connectivity—they redefine accessibility, ease of living, and investment potential. At M3M India, we've consistently seen how such developments elevate the overall ecosystem, unlocking new zones of growth.”

That is the critical point. New hotspots along emerg-
